SECRET

h. Recent crises involving U.S. interests have required comprehensive, timely intelligence on geographic areas not routinely covered in depth by the Intelligence Community. The U.S. requires the intelligence collection and analytic surge capability and flexibility to conduct intelligence operations for an extended period of time against contingency country targets of a magnitude comparable to those conducted against Iran during the hostage crisis without seriously degrading the efforts against continuing high priority intelligence targets.

SECRET